

You're invited to explore Community Health Action Teams' images and reflections on a community-driven colorectal cancer screening awareness campaign.

“

I am always delighted when people gain knowledge from the work that we do. This photo demonstrates the power of being able to see and feel. People are exiting the colorectal cancer tunnel with a better understanding of what polyps are and why it is important to find them quickly and have them removed. Knowledge is power. Early detection is the key to discovering and curing colorectal cancer.
